“Misericordia: Making Mercy Visible”

TWENTY-SECOND SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Jesus said to his disciples, “Whoever wishes
to come after me
must deny himself,
take up his cross,
and follow me.”

Matthew 16:24

FOLLOWING CHRIST

If you've ever had an unpleasant but somewhat amusing practical joke played on you, then you have some understanding of how Jeremiah feels today when he tells God "good one--you duped me." We can almost see him shaking his head with a bit of a rueful smile, but an angry undertone in his voice. In similar fashion, Peter thinks Jesus is "duping" him when Jesus starts to explain that being Messiah means suffering and dying, and being a follower of the Messiah means taking up a cross and doing the same. Jeremiah tries to deny God's will for him by trying to shut up; Peter--who has just been made the foundation of the church--out and out denies the teaching of Jesus, for which he is named "Satan" today. Fortunately for us, Jeremiah comes to realize that to have the word of God placed in your heart means that it will be futile to try and keep silent, even if it means scorn and derision from those around you. Luckily Peter ultimately returned to the faith he professed in last week's Gospel, and came to understand our need as baptized followers of Christ to follow in his way, even when it means following him to our very death.

Today's Good News ~ Gerald Vann

To learn to be fully human is hard, because it implies all hardship of asceticism, the constant day by day struggle with what is weakly self-indulgent and disintegrating. But it is harder, perhaps, to learn to be reborn from God instead of trying to make it for yourself, and so to be able to say, "I live now, not I but Christ lives in me." Yet that is the essential. Christian virtue is a question not so much of doing as of being. When you hear it said of someone "He's a different man since he fell in love," you have a clue to what must happen to the Christian. As you are, so you will act; love affects one's being, and therefore, in consequence one's behavior — even though you do the same things you will do them entirely differently — and it is when you can say "I live now, not I" that you can go on to say "I can do all things," and you can say the latter because you add, with the docility of the child, "in Him who strengthens me."
