LOVE ONE ANOTHER

In the Gospel for the Sixth Sunday of Easter we are met with an extraordinary challenge: Jesus commands us to "love one another as I love you" (John 15:12). The letter from John echoes this command. Of course, we are to love those in our family, those we work with, those we like. But the scriptures make clear that we are also to love those we never notice, those we purposely avoid, and even those we are tempted to despise. In this Sunday's selection from the Acts of the Apostles Peter shows us how far God's love extends, and how far our love should extend in response. Peter realizes that God no longer "shows partiality" to the Jews, sharing divine love exclusively with them. Christ has revealed that God's love extends to all people, and so should ours.

Today's Good News ~Living with Christ

"My Home is within you" (Psalm 87:7). I love to travel, but also love the feeling I get when I arrive home at the end of the journey. I love flying over my city and seeing recognizable landmarks. I love pulling into my driveway and walking into my own kitchen. I know I'm home when I hug my wife and kids and hear my cat coming to greet me. It's all a part of the trip. Home sits near the center of my life and constantly calls me back. But as strong as that pull can be, the force that drives us ever toward God is greater still, for God is the very center of our lives and the home of all we are as Christians. No matter where we travel or what obstacles we face, no matter what personal crises or health issues we battle, God sits at the center of our souls and connects us to something real and true and strong. Most importantly, God is our anchor that holds us fast, the only thing that never changes in an ever-changing world. STEVE GIVENS
